Grow your business with BAG-BD

Starting and growing businesses in fire protection is part art, part science, and part engineering. Whether it's starting a distributorship, a manufacturing company, or a consulting / rep firm, BAG knows how to get it going and keep it going. If your organization has reached a plateau and is looking to grow, BAG knows how to do it. With over a hundred years of experience in the field of fire protection, BAG-BD's business professionals can support you in sales and marketing, accounting and administration, and operations and engineering. Not only do we know how to support each of these important corporate areas, but we understand how they are connected and interact with each other.

We're not consultants who just went to school and read up on the subjects. We have lived the actual process of starting companies and growing them. We have our own companies and we have consulted with some of the best companies in the industry; sometimes heavily involved and sometimes just tweaking the details to make them more profitable, or sometimes just helping land that one big project.

If you are new to the industry, or if you are trying to create your own sales staff, or develop distribution, or if your sales have outpaced your infrastructure, BAG can help make you more successful – faster.
